

From point A to point b: what distance should admit students?

It is difficult to tell where the end boundary of the permitted proximity between teacher and student.

In our training center "MAXIMUM" has formed the principles of academic relationships. If you try to formulate them in one sentence, you get the following: proximity is good, if it has a positive effect on academic performance.

Open lessons as a tool promotes

How proximity affects the performance and why is this happening? The fact that the mental reduction of the distance creates in any person a sense of trust and, therefore, eliminates internal barriers to learning. In addition, the weakening of detachment strengthens the personal responsibility of the student in front of teacher, and of this phenomenon the fruit is always sweet.

It remains to deal with the recipe intimacy: what it is and in what form to bring to the table.

Don't be afraid to be human

First and foremost, you are a teacher, but even the most notorious professional consists of flesh and blood. Don't be afraid to lift the veil of mystery about your life: appropriate spoken comment about your Hobbies or an example from your personal experience to illustrate the lesson material, will not leave indifferent class. The students are extremely grateful to those signs of trust from the teachers. Tell the class how you were worried before exams, or remember stories from their first lesson. It relieves General tension in the class, attracts attention and allows us to feel to you with trust: "lo! It turns out that the teacher once had similar problems and he will be able to without difficulty understand students!"

Be online

Internet a comfortable and natural environment for young people. Use it as a tool for educational purposes. To leave the students your phone number is meaningless, call will not be, but to show a link to the social network extremely useful. This will facilitate the process of communication with pupils and will help to point number one. If your social media profile is a personal space, you can create a community, second page or work with the privacy settings.

Create a "one-way" proximity

No need to let the students in your private life is incompetent. Sometimes to gain trust man enough to just listen to him, every psychologist knows that. Often students don't even have to ask — they are ready to speak about what does not find support from the.

Do not change the profession of a teacher to be an expert on all questions

It is very important to begin to teach students the intricacies of life, and just be an attentive listener. What gives? You will be given the keys to the problems in teaching some of the students, and, hence, the possibility of their solution. For example, if a student has been dancing math homework help online, what you need to fabricate the lesson of the Russian language in the proposal about hip hop and ask her to deal with it?

Break the dry formalities

Create an atmosphere of cooperation in the class

Subordination is an important and necessary thing in teaching, but we believe it is achieved is not a formality. For example, you can afford to call you by your first name with no middle name and in the form that suits you. It will not add familiarity, but will greatly facilitate the conversion process. You can also experiment with space: to change the position of desks, their path of movement or even change the location for lessons. It may be the transfer of the lesson to the Park, depart on the train at the scheduled place, or a trip to the Museum. Try different terms, don't limit yourself to years of stamps.

Before deciding on the steps towards students, it is worth considering why you need it. For example, to become "the guy" in the team — not rouzina goal, such familiarity is unfounded. But if you have a clear desire to achieve high results from its students, the approximation will be an essential part of your work. Based on the experience of our training center, this approach requires a much greater emotional and physical cost, but the result is worth all the effort.